

TEKSAN RECEIVED AUTHORIZED ECONOMIC OPERATOR CERTIFICATE

Teksan provides speed and cost advantage in exports

One of the pioneers companies in the energy industry, Teksan Generator has joined among the privileged companies possessing “Authorized Economic Operator Certificate (AEO)”. Teksan Generator, one of the companies with highest export sales in Turkey will increase its strength in global competition while expanding its export network with the international status has received.

The Authorized Economic Operator Certificate (AEO) was introduced by the Ministry of Customs and Trade in 2013 in order to facilitate customs procedures for export and import. This system is applicable in 91 countries especially in the European Union and USA. AEO Certificate provides privileges to companies such as on-site customs clearance, permitted sender, common transit and advantageous transit. Authorized Economic Operator status aiming to provide safety in international trade is granted to companies that fulfil their customs obligations and possessing financial competency and safety standards. In addition to credibility, the presence of sufficient infrastructure that can offer a similar environment to the customs administration and the employees are sought from the companies applying for AEO certificate.

Teksan Generator satisfies the required conditions to receive an Authorized Economic Operator Certificate that provides a great advantage in the international field as well, has opened the way for on-site customs clearance with its privileged position with this certificate. In this way, Teksan will be able to perform customs operations at its own facilities and will reduce its costs while providing faster service to its customers and business partners with its AEO Certificate. Another advantage brought with the Authorized Economic Operator Status will be the realization of faster deliveries abroad.
